John F. Kerry presiding. Staff members assigned to this hearing: Lila H. Helms, professional staff member, and Penelope D. Dalton, senior professional staff member; and John T. McCabe, minority professional staff member, and John A. Moran, minority staff counsel. Opening Statement Of Senator Kerry Senator Kerry. The hearing will come to order. I apologize for being late. Good afternoon and welcome to what may be one of the most important hearings the Senate will conduct this year on international environmental protection. Today we will hear testimony on the Antarctic policy of the United States and legislative proposals to implement the Protocol on Environmental Protection to the Antarctic Treaty, a subject that we have been waiting for sometime to make real progress on. Antarctica is often described as the ultimate pristine wilderness, and forms a unique and critical part of our global environmental system. The continent composes about one-tenth of the Earth s land surface and about 98 percent of its surface is covered by ice. It is home to many species of flora and fauna including whales, seals, and penguins. Its remote environment has attracted explorers, resource prospectors, scientists, and most recently large numbers of tourists. The special values of Antarctica are reflected in the Antarctic Treaty of 1959. This agreement forms the...
