Reviews

A high quality pdf as well as the typeface applied was exciting to see. It really is written in simple words and phrases rather than difficult to understand. You will not really feel monotony at any time of your time (that's what catalogs are for relating to in the event you question me).

Not illustrated. 1913 Excerpt: .amount of the rates, and in two or three of the incidents to meet the circumstance that the weight-distance journey of each letter and paper could not be economically ascertained, and that the rate of railway pay ought to be higher per pound for such matter. The total weight of the railwaymoving mails, including equipment, was ascertained to be 887,278 tons for 1908. Postal receipts increased 28.34 per cent in 1912 over 1908. This would indicate the total weight of mail and equipment for 1912 to be 1,138,692 tons, which divided into the gross railway pay for 1912 gives a rate of $43.65 per ton; or on the experience of the average mail journey in 1908 (620 miles), eight (8.12) cents a tonmile. Assuming that this rate be continued, I do not here discuss its justice, all nonparcel or express mail during the weighing period would be pouched in bags by itself and weighed at the post office before going to the railway. These weights totaled into tons for the country would give the gross amount of service rendered, and multiplied by the ton-rate agreed to be paid the railways, say, $43.65 per ton, as now, would give the total fund payable to the railways for this branch of the service; which should be, then, distributed among the railways according to the car-foot-mile basis employed for the payment of express transportation. We should thus have a rate of 5 cents a ton-mile for postal express matter,...
