That the money taken from municipal revenue to build and equip North Market Street Dock--First Section, be refunded out of this bond issue. Conclusion Industrial prosperity is vital to the welfare of a great city. The successful development of all industrial property and the maximum of service cannot be provided by private enterprises. The city should aid its own industries by facilitating the handling of freight to all avenues of transportation and by reducing switching charges to a minimum. This is impossible where the railroads and terminals are planned wholly for the advancement of private interests. St. Louis should provide rail connections between all large industrial areas, the Municipal Bridge and all large railroads entering the city. with suitable
